

Get your bearings

The Macedon Ranges is part of the wider Daylesford Macedon Tourism region and so easy to get to from the heart of Melbourne; less than an hour by car, or if you prefer by train.

Traverse historic streets edged with ancient bluestone, quiet country roads snaking through wide open spaces, and picture-worthy oak-lined Avenues of Honour. Along the way you will discover character-filled villages and tiny hamlets.

Buzzing with historic and culinary energy, these country towns will draw you in and leave you wanting more.

Our great outdoors

Moving through the Macedon Ranges is like moving through a series of postcards.

Hike amongst rare volcanic rock formations at Hanging Rock. Mountain bike in the cool of the Wombat Forest. Discover the historic Bourke and Wills Track, bordered by picturesque rolling farmland strewn with awe-inspiring granite boulders. Or immerse yourself in a sensory experience of eucalyptus, pine and wattle, while exploring bushland walking tracks. You may even glimpse little creatures unique to Australia, peeking from the bracken.

Best of all, each experience is remade four times a year by the changing seasons. Discover old favourites with fresh eyes amid an explosion of autumn and spring colours, cool, shady summers, or snow-dusted, snug-by-the-fire winters.

Botanical treasures

The Macedon Ranges is known for its abundance of beautiful public and private gardens. Some of the region's best are open to the public during spring and autumn, giving you a chance to experience stunning garden design in an explosion of colour. Others are open year-round to enjoy, or you can simply stroll quiet village streets to enjoy the local flora firsthand.

The Botanic Gardens in Kyneton and Malmsbury are heritage gardens with many original cuttings from the Royal Botanical Gardens in Melbourne. And for passionate green thumbs, don't miss the annual Garden Lovers Plant Fair held in Macedon every October.

Follow your art

'Art' is a word synonymous with the rich heritage of the Macedon Ranges. Per capita, our region has more professional artists working in the arts than anywhere else in Victoria.

A day in the Macedon Ranges can easily be spent travelling between galleries. Tap into our artistic community and mingle with local artists in their own spaces on the Macedon Ranges Art Trail, or during the Daylesford Macedon Ranges Open Studios program.

The region is also a hub for lost trades, offering workshops and an annual Lost Trades Fair showcasing artisans and tradespeople specialising in lost arts, rare trades and forgotten crafts.

Treat your tastebuds

The rolling hills and valleys of the Macedon Ranges are a treasure trove filled with some of Victoria's best food and wine. As a leading foodie territory, the region is home to many renowned cafes, restaurants, bakeries and pubs.

Output from surrounding farmland is easy to find at local food stops, providores, gourmet larders and roadside stalls.

Plus every weekend you will find a market showcasing the very best local produce. The Macedon Ranges is the coldest wine region on the mainland, renowned for award-winning cool climate wines. There are over 27 cellar doors regularly open for tastings, many of which are small, family owned affairs.

Getting here

The Macedon Ranges sits right on Melbourne’s doorstep, just 45 minutes north of the CBD and just 30 minutes north of the city’s international airport. Our central location means we are accessible from all points of Victoria. The Calder Freeway, connecting Bendigo and Melbourne, runs through the spine of the Macedon Ranges.
